Get immediate access to capital on outstanding 30, 60, or 90-day invoices. Invoice factoring is a type of financing where a business sells its invoices at a discounted price for immediate access to working capital. It can take anywhere from 30 to 90 days for most businesses to receive payments from their customers, in these cases, invoice factoring gives small businesses quick access to funds to meet their cash flow needs. The funder will receive payments on invoices directly from your customers, or you will forward your customer's payments to the funder until the entire advance amount is paid off.

One of the advantages of invoice factoring is that it allows your business to turn outstanding invoices into upfront working capital. An important thing to note about invoice factoring is that most funders will review a business's outstanding invoices to make sure customers have a history of making payments on time.

We work closely with many funders that offer simple solutions to obtaining funds through invoice factoring.
